What is Inclusive Leadership?

I start with the premise that

Principles of Collaboration

1

The whole is greater than the sum of its parts.

2

People have a right
to be involved
in making decisions
that affect their lives.

3

People involved in making decisions have a greater stake in carrying those decisions out.

Decision-Making Style

Decision-Making Style

Think about the way you typically make decisions that have program-wide implications (for example, hiring a new teacher, expanding program options, adjusting program hours, modifying program philosophy, or planning a center-wide social event). Read each of the statements below and choose three that are most typical for you for these types of decisions.

1. As director, I have the big picture, so I usually make most of the important decisions pertaining to program operations.
2. I like to bring issues to my staff and get 100% agreement before we proceed.
3. I present my ideas to my staff and get their input before I make a final decision on important issues.
4. I bring issues before my staff and take a vote. I implement the majority decision.
5. I defer to my staff's expertise and let them form a committee to decide on important issues.
6. I ask a few of my most experienced staff to make key decisions regarding the program.
7. I don't think it is necessary for everyone to agree 100% on a course of action, but I like to get general agreement from my staff on an issue before proceeding.
8. I weigh all the pros and cons of an issue, make a decision, and then "sell" it to my staff.
9. I make a tentative decision on an issue pertaining to the program and test the reactions of several teachers before making my final decision.
10. I don't want to burden my staff with extra work, so I typically make most program-wide decisions myself.
11. I appoint ad hoc committees for making different program-wide issues.
12. I set up an advisory group of teachers to provide feedback to me on different issues before I make my final decision.

Values that Support Inclusive Leadership

DIRECTORS BELIEVE THAT...

- teachers and support staff are responsible, motivated, and trustworthy and that each has something to contribute
- teachers and support staff have information, skills, and creative talents that, when shared, will increase decision quality
- open expression of ideas and feelings is healthy and suppression of thoughts and beliefs reduces the quality of decisions

Values that Support Inclusive Leadership

DIRECTORS BELIEVE THAT...

- conflict is not something to be avoided, but is a potential source of information rather than a threat or a challenge
- influence in the organization should be based upon expertise rather than role designation

Adapted from Wood, C.J. (1984). Participatory Decision Making: Why Doesn't it Seem to Work? Educational Forum, 49(1), 59.

My Work Style

My Work Style

For each situation described below, select the response (a or b) that best describes you.

1. In a typical week
 - a. I complete my work within 40 hours.
 - b. I work 40 hours plus many evenings and weekends.
2. In a typical week I spend most of my time
 - a. planning, training staff, and evaluating the program.
 - b. answering the phone, attending meetings, and resolving personnel problems.
3. When I'm on vocation, my time off is
 - a. only occasionally interrupted by center emergencies.
 - b. frequently interrupted by calls, e-mails, and texts from staff about routine problems.
4. When I delegate a task to a staff member,
 - a. I explain the result expected and allow the individual to "do her thing."
 - b. I spell out how to complete the task, step by step.
5. After I've delegated a task,
 - a. I have the individual provide periodic progress reports.
 - b. I check once or twice a day to see how it's going.
6. When a staff member is floundering with a delegated task,
 - a. I offer to provide whatever assistance is needed.
 - b. I take the job back and do it myself.
7. When a staff member does an acceptable but not exceptional job on a delegated task,
 - a. I accept the work and point out how it could be improved next time.
 - b. I do it over myself.
8. When a staff member suggests a change in my way of doing a task,
 - a. I assess the pros and cons of each approach.
 - b. I become defensive and show why my way is best.

Decision-Making—Getting Started

Decision Time

Think of a decision to be made within the next month that has program-wide implications. It need not be a major decision, simply one that provides an opportunity to expand the circle of influence of some of the people with whom you work.

Describe the issue or problem: _____

Who are the stakeholders who may be affected by the decision?

Stakeholder	Relevance			Expertise
	L	M	H	L	M	H

For each stakeholder, assess the level of interest in the issue (low, medium, or high relevance) and the level of competence to make an informed and wise decision (low, medium, or high expertise).

Referring to Levels of Participation (the table on page 23 in Circle of Influence), what level of participation do you think would be most effective to use in this situation: consultative, collaborative, or delegated?

What are the external constraints that may impact stakeholders' involvement? _____

Describe your strategy for implementing this decision: _____

Three Phases of Making a Decision by Consensus

Creativity

Analysis

Decision

Consensus: What it Is and Isn't

- a decision by unanimous vote
- all team members are able to paraphrase the issue to show they understand it
- the final decision is everyone's first choice
- all team members have a chance to voice their opinions on the issue
- all team members share the final decision
- there are no differences of opinion
- all team members agree to take responsibility for implementing the decision

Three Phases of Making a Decision by Consensus

Creativity

- Open discussion to generate and record ideas

Analysis

- Clarify and group items, chart patterns, evaluate impact, and assess outcomes

Decision

- Eliminate and narrow, prioritize, rank, or vote to determine most suitable alternative

Consensus Building Strategy: Five Finger Voting

- No way, let's think of an alternative

- Don't agree, not my choice, but I can live with it

- Okay with me, willing to support

- Agree, good solution, support

- Total agreement, best solution, complete support

Consensus does not mean that the final decision
is everyone's first choice.
It does mean that you are willing to live with the decision, however, and will not sabotage it.

Effects of Different Decision Rules on Participation

- Person in charge decides without group discussion
- Person in charge decides after group discussion
- Majority vote
- Unanimous agreement
